

1 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
2

3 FOR THE DISTRICT OF OREGON 4

5 CALISTA ENTERPRISES LTD., )
6 Plaintiff, ) 3:13-cv-01045-SI
7 vs. ) July 25, 2014
8 TENZA TRADING LTD., ) Portland, Oregon
9 Defendant. )
10
11
12

13 TRANSCRIPT OF PROCEEDINGS
14

15 BEFORE THE HONORABLE MICHAEL H. SIMON
16

17 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT JUDGE 18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25

1 APPEARANCES

2 FOR THE PLAINTIFF: Evan Fray-Witzer
3 Ciampa Fray-Witzer, LLP
4 20 Park Plaza, Suite 505
Boston, MA 021165 Matthew Shayefar
6 Valentin David Gurvits
7 Boston Law Group, PC
8 825 Beacon Street, Suite 20
Newton Centre, MA 024599 Sean Ploen
Ploen Law Firm, PC
100 South Fifth Street, Suite 1900
10 Minneapolis, MN 5540211 Valentin David Gurvits
Boston Law Group, PC
825 Beacon Street, Suite 20
Newton Centre, MA 0245912 Thomas Freedman, Jr.
Pearl Law LLC
522 SW Fifth Avenue, Suite 1100
Portland, OR 9720413
14 FOR THE DEFENDANT: Devon Zastrow Newman
15 Schwabe Williamson & Wyatt, PC
16 1211 SW Fifth Avenue, Suite 1600
Portland, OR 9720417 Paul Nathan Tauger
18 Anna M. Vradenburgh (Via telephone)
The Eclipse Group LLP
6345 Balboa Boulevard, Suite 325
Encino, CA 9131619
20
21
22
23 COURT REPORTER: Dennis W. Apodaca, RDR, RMR, FCRR
24 United States District Courthouse
1000 SW Third Avenue, Room 301
Portland, OR 97204
25 (503) 326-8182

1 (July 25, 2014)

2 P R O C E E D I N G S

3 (Open court:)

4 THE CLERK: Your Honor, this is the time set for 5 13-cv-1045, Calista Enterprises Limited versus Tenza 6 Limited. This is the time set for oral argument on the 7 parties' motions for summary judgment. Appearing by 8 telephone for the plaintiff, Mr. Sean Ploen.

9 Mr. Ploen, can you hear me?

10 MR. PLOEN: Yes, I can. Thank you.

11 THE CLERK: Appearing by phone for defendant, 12 Ms. Anna Erdenburg (phonetic).

13 MS. VRADENBURGH: Yes. It is Vradenburg.

14 THE CLERK: Thank you.

15 I will ask counsel, beginning with plaintiff's 16 counsel, to please identify yourselves for the record.

17 MR. FREEDMAN: Thomas Freedman for Calista.

18 MR. GURVITS: Val Gurvits for Calista.

19 MR. SHAYEFAR: Good morning. Matthew Shayefar
20 for Calista.

21 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Good morning, Your Honor, Evan 22 Fray-Witzer for Calista.

23 MR. TAUGER: Good morning, Your Honor. Paul
24 Tauger for Tenza. I would like to introduce 25 Juliette Horwitz, who is a paralegal who is assisting us.

1 MS. NEWMAN: Good morning. Devon Newman for 2 Tenza.

3 THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

4 We are here on cross-motions for summary
5 judgment and specifically Calista's motion, which is 6 No. 94, and Tenza's cross-motion, which was originally 7 filed as Docket 100, which was amended and corrected and 8 now appears as Docket 131.

9 I have read your moving papers and many of your 10 exhibits. By the way, I do want to say right now, on the 11 exhibits, and this is mostly directed to Calista, because 12 I think that's where I saw most of these, I didn't see the 13 need to have the explicit photographs included in the 14 exhibits. I certainly understand what you are talking 15 about. And if we have more motion practice, I would 16 appreciate a bit more effort to black things out, unless 17 it is truly necessary. If it is, so be it.

18 But most significantly, if we do go to trial, I 19 expect all counsel will diligently and thoroughly black 20 out from the jury exhibits what the jury doesn't need to 21 see. What the jury does need to see, so be it. We will 22 talk about it in advance, and they can handle it. But if 23 they don't need to see it, I would like some care and 24 attention by counsel to black things out so we can focus 25 on the relevant intellectual property issues.

I also have a beginning question, more of a fundamental factual issue that's a little bit clear to me. It is my understanding that there were 13 disputed domain names at issue before the UDRP proceeding. I see some reference in the memoranda and the exhibits to maybe 14, maybe 17, perhaps a 14th that was discovered during discovery, perhaps three more that are not yet identified. It is not clear to me exactly what is happening.

Can somebody explain that to me?

MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes, Your Honor. The total number is actually 14 that are at issue. There were 13 in the UDRP. There was one additional domain GoldPornTube.xxx that had been discovered late by Calista, primarily because they hadn't been looking at that top level of domain.

The references to 17, with all due respect, and I can understand why it might have been confusing, but if you were to read the portions of the testimony that my Brother cites to for the 17, really that is not what the parties were saying. That's not what they were saying through discovery. They were saying that there were 17 additional domains that had somewhere in them the word "porn" and the word "tube." But, no, there are not 17; there are 14 domains that are really at issue.

THE COURT: The 14, in addition to the 13 that I

1 know from the UDRP action, is GoldPornTubeXXX.com. Is 2 that correct?

3 MR. FRAY-WITZER: No, Your Honor. There is not 4 .com. It is a top-level domain .xxx, which was created 5 specifically for adult entertainment.

6 THE COURT: That's helpful. Thank you.

7 One other area that I would like to ask about in 8 the beginning, and I will let you all argue. This may be 9 in the category of low-hanging fruit, but I think it is 10 the only thing that is in the category of low-hanging 11 fruit.

12 I see that Calista's claims are set forth in 13 four counts: Count 1, declaratory and injunctive relief 14 under the Anti-Cybersquatting Consumer Protection Act, 15 seeking to prohibit the transfer of the names to the 16 defendant, Tenza; Count 2, the declaration of 17 non-infringement of trademark; Count 3, the declaration of 18 no unfair competition; and Count 4, seeking the Court to 19 order cancellation of the trademark registration, the '197 20 trademark by Tenza.

21 There is a motion by Tenza to strike Calista's 22 request in its prayer for monetary damages. I think 23 that's well taken. I didn't see any response by Calista 24 in its moving papers.

25 Am I missing something?

1 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Your Honor, the one argument
2 that I would make concerning damages, and maybe it is not 3 something that would be typically considered "damages," 4 But under exceptional cases under the Lanham Act, the 5 Court may award attorney's fees. Exceptional cases are 6 cases that have been defined as being obvious or 7 straightforward. It was always our contention that 8 because we claim that "porn tube" is and could only be 9 generic, that this may be one of those cases. The only 10 claim for damages would be for attorney's fees, and maybe 11 that should be stated differently.

12                   THE COURT: That's okay. That's really the only 13 area that I thought might be appropriate, and I think the 14 best way to phrase that. So I'm inclined to grant the 15 motion by Tenza to strike the recovery of monetary 16 damages, but that's without prejudice to Calista's right 17 to, at the conclusion of the trial or conclusion of the 18 determinations where we are, if Calista prevails on the 19 Lanham Act claims, then Calista, within 14 days after 20 judgment, may move for attorney's fees. As part of its 21 argument for why it is entitled to attorney fees under the 22 Lanham Act must show that it has satisfied the requisite 23 criteria under the Lanham Act. So I am going to grant 24 that portion of summary judgment by Tenza without 25 prejudice to that issue on attorney's fees. I think

1 that's it for low-hanging fruit.

2 Now, that said, we have cross-motions for 3 summary judgment, so both sides can argue. Since Calista 4 is the plaintiff, if you would like to argue first, you
5 may. You don't need to repeat what's in your briefs.
6 Frankly, what would be most helpful to me, although you 7 are welcome to argue anything you want, is to really focus 8 on what you believe are the strongest points that support 9 summary judgment in Calista's favor.

10 We don't need to get into arguing why Tenza 11 shouldn't be given summary judgment, except as it 12 logically follows from some of your arguments. But if you 13 would give me some of your strongest points of what claims 14 and why Calista should get summary judgment in its favor, 15 why there aren't disputed issues of fact, that would be a 16 good place to start.

17 Then my plan would be to hear Tenza's response 18 to those arguments, and eventually we will work our way to 19 hearing Tenza's arguments for why it believes it should 20 get summary judgment on some of its claims or against some 21 of Calista's claims. That would be most helpful to me.
22 That said, you can argue whatever you want.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 Your Honor, despite the reams of paper filed by 25 both sides in this case, I really do think that the case

1 can be decided on summary judgment by answering a single 2 question: Is the primary significance of the phrase "porn 3 tube," a combination of "porn" and "tube," is the primary 4 significance of that phrase to describe the type of 5 product or service offered?

6           Because if that is the primary significance of 7 that phrase, Your Honor, the phrase is generic, and it
8 cannot be a valid trademark. That's, of course, true 9 because as the cases tell us, to say otherwise, would be 10 to allow one competitor the exclusive right to describe 11 their product or service with the common everyday words 12 that tell a consumer what the service is.

13           The only way that Tenza can survive Calista's 14 motion for summary judgment is if it can convince this 15 Court, and it tries mightily to do so, if it can convince 16 this Court that the words "porn" and "tube" mean something 17 other than "porn" and "tube."

18           Now, although I'm going to discuss in a few 19 minutes, Your Honor, our evidence under the various 20 factors for why we believe the phrase "porn tube" is 21 generic, the place that I can't help but be driven to as a 22 starting point is not a single piece of evidence that 23 Calista has provided to the Court, but a piece of evidence 24 from Tenza. Specifically I'm drawn to the declaration of 25 Christopher Jon Sprigman that was submitted by Tenza. It

1 is document 115-9. It seems to encompass our point so 2 well. Just as a reminder, because there are so many 3 exhibits in the case.

4 THE COURT: Hold on one second.

5 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Christopher Sprigman was one 6 of the offers of a Freakonomics article that we had 7 previously provided to the Court as an instance of the use 8 of the phrase "porn tube" in what we contended to be a 9 generic manner.

10 Now, my Brother managed to get a declaration 11 from one of the authors, in which I will admit he does say 12 that he was not using it in what he believes to be a 13 generic sense, but he does also describe the manner in 14 which he was using it, and I think it is incredibly 15 relevant.

16 He starts by talking about and introducing the 17 subject, "A substantial amount of piracy" -- they were 18 writing an article on piracy -- "in the 19 adult-entertainment industry occurs on user-generated 20 content sites. These sites, which include" --

21 THE COURT: Read slowly; we have got a court 22 reporter.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: "These sites, which include 24 XVIDEOS, RedTube, PornHub, YouPorn, PornTube, and others 25 are similar in the concept to YouTube, i.e., they provide

1 access to content that has been posted by the site's 2 users, except the content by the users of the sites, like 3 those mentioned in our blog posts, is pornographic. In 4 our posts, we were trying to explain to our readers what 5 these user-generated content porn sites were and how they 6 worked. I remember thinking in the process of writing and 7 entering the posts that many readers would not be familiar 8 with these sites and that Professor Raustila and I would 9 have to find a way to describe them."

10 THE COURT: Why don't you spell the name now so 11 the reporter doesn't ask me.

12 MR. FRAY-WITZER: R-A-U-S-T-I-L-A.

13 THE COURT: Thank you.

14 MR. FRAY-WITZER: "And as is always the case
15 when writing a blog post where space and reader attention 16 are limited, we were trying to explain as quickly and 17 efficiently as possible. I was, of course, quite familiar 18 even at the time with YouTube, and I trusted that 19 virtually all of our readers wouldn't be as well. My 20 recollection is that Professor Raustila and I used the 21 term 'porn tube' as a descriptor for the user-generated 22 content porn sites because we thought readers who were 23 familiar with YouTube would understand immediately from 24 the term "porn tube," that the sites we were describing 25 were very much like YouTube; i.e., they featured content

1 posted by users, but then unlike YouTube, the content was 2 pornographic.

3 "I do not recall at the time we wrote the post 4 that Professor Raustila and I were familiar with the 5 PornTube website and adopted the term 'porn tube' from 6 that website's name or whether we coined the term 'porn 7 tube,'" but I do recall as far as I was concerned, we were 8 using the term "porn tube" because we thought it was a 9 very good descriptor of what user-generated porn sites 10 were; that is, those sites were similar to and functioned 11 like YouTube, only with pornographic content."

12 That, Your Honor, despite the author's 13 contention that he had not been thinking of the term as a 14 generic, is the definition of a generic term. It is a 15 term that, when used, will immediately tell the users, not 16 who produced the service, but what the service is.

17 Their own evidence -- their own declaration 18 submitted to the Court says: We knew that instantly if we 19 used the term "porn tube," that everyone was going to know 20 what we were talking about. In fact, he doesn't even know 21 if he knew that the PornTube.com website existed at the 22 time, and he clearly identifies a world of websites 23 similar to that site that he did know existed and says:
24 We were simply trying to give readers an easy, quick, 25 immediately understandable way to know what we were

1 talking about, and that was the phrase "porn tube."

2 Now, there are a lot of cases that have been 3 cited by both sides again, and I would suggest, 4 Your Honor, that, as you requested, if we give you sort of 5 our most powerful information, our most powerful fact, if 6 you could only read one case from Calista's side, and I 7 hope you read more, but if you could read one case, the 8 case comes from this Court originally, it is the 9 Surgicenter case, because in every respect that is 10 material to this argument, the Surgicenter case, the 11 District Court opinion in particular, is directly on 12 point.

13 Surgicenter was the combination of "surgical" 14 and "center," and the Court, first of all, looked at 15 "surgi," and said that everyone understands that "surgi"
16 is a short name of "surgical." It is what everyone 17 intended, and it is what everyone understands. Everyone 18 understands what a "center" is. And when you put these 19 two words together, you are not coming up with anything 20 other than what any average consumer would think when they 21 hear "Surgicenter," a surgical center.

22 The Court said that we wouldn't certainly let 23 you trademark "surgical center." That wouldn't happen.
24 We wouldn't let you trademark "hospital." You can't 25 trademark the things that are the names for things. The

1 Surgicenter case is also particularly relevant, because 2 the doctors in that case had gotten a trademark for 3 "Surgicenter," and it did not matter to the Court.

4 In fact, the evidence in Surgicenter also went 5 towards a lot of the factors that I'm sure my Brother will 6 discuss about having spent a lot of money on the name, 7 having advertised the mark, having used the mark, and the 8 fact that they were able to convince people that the mark 9 was affiliated with a particular provider.

10 The Court said, "Both parties agree that 11 'Surgicenter' was coined by the doctors who founded the 12 original corporation. It is not necessary for me to 13 decide whether the term has since fallen into the public 14 domain, for they chose from the beginning a term that 15 defined their service. Although it is regrettable that 16 they expended much time, energy, and money in the belief 17 that a valid service mark was being created, the outcome 18 was not thereby affected."

19 That is precisely, I would submit, and when you 20 look at the case, on almost every factor addressed, 21 precisely the case that you have before you today. I 22 would note, of course, also, it was decided on summary
23 judgment. It was upheld by the Ninth Circuit as a summary 24 judgment decision.

25 THE COURT: Is "YouTube" a registered trademark?

1 MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: If I accept your argument and rule 3 consistent with what you have just argued, what does that 4 do to the validity of the trademark of YouTube, because 5 YouTube -- the same thing. It is basically a generic term
6 that describes: Go ahead and make some videos of yourself 7 and upload it to the site.

8 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I actually think it is a 9 little bit different, Your Honor. Obviously the "Tube" 10 portion is not different. The "You" portion is different, 11 however. With "PORNTUBE," you know that what you are 12 getting are pornographic materials at a tube site. That's 13 it; that's the combination.

14 THE COURT: Why is it with YouTube what you are 15 getting is something made basically by a non-professional 16 user who takes videos of themselves or their friends and 17 uploads it to a tube site?

18 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, as one reason,
19 Your Honor, much of the content on YouTube is not user 20 generated, although it was more so at another time. For 21 another reason, the term "you" is not a definitional term, 22 it is a suggestive term, which makes it different from 23 this case where "PORN" -- they try to say that "PORN" 24 really isn't porn, But if you go to the site, it is porn.

25 THE COURT: Well, I haven't gone to the site,

1 but I'll take your word for it. One of the things that 2 Tenza is arguing is that "porn" has a different meaning 3 and connotation than "pornography." What do we make of 4 that?

5 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, I'm amused by it. None 6 of the definitions from any dictionary would agree with 7 them. The common usage of "porn" on the Internet anywhere 8 would not agree. The one area in which they try to extend 9 that, they say, well, look at the term "food porn," for 10 example. Let's talk about "food porn," because "food 11 porn" clearly is not pornographic. It is a term generally 12 used to describe one of two things: Either fast food that 13 is so high in calories that it is almost "pornographic" in 14 nature.

15 THE COURT: I must admit, I have never heard 16 that term before this case or that briefing.

17 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Or it is also used in highly 18 stylized photographs of food that are so highly stylized 19 that they are being analogized to pornography. In fact, 20 we cited and provided the Court with the Wikipedia article 21 that tracks the etymology of the term "food porn," and it 22 really is very clear that, although "pornography" is being 23 used in a different context, it is still being used 24 precisely to let the user know that this is something like 25 pornography. It is made to stimulate the mind. It is

1 made to arouse the senses. It is a tongue-in-cheek way of 2 saying pornography.

3               Quite honestly, in this particular case, 4 although they may say, "Hey, there are some times that 5 'porn' doesn't mean porn." There are some times that 6 "porn" means porn. That is with respect to Calista's 7 sites and Tenza's sites. "Porn" clearly means porn when 8 we are talking about these sites and the millions of sites 9 that use the term "porn tube" to describe themselves.

10              THE COURT: Now, that sounds like a fine 11 argument, maybe even persuasive, but don't they have 12 experts that say to the contrary? Then why does that not 13 create a fact dispute on the meaning of "porn" or the 14 distinction between "porn" and "pornography"?

15              MR. FRAY-WITZER: Because, Your Honor, they 16 could not stand before you and say: We trademarked the 17 word "car," but when we say "car," everyone really thinks 18 "airplane."

19              "Porn" really does have a definition. The cases 20 that decide these things on summary judgment, and in our 21 reply we have cited for you quite a number of them, in a 22 lot of those cases the same argument was made that the 23 word had been infused with some different or alternative 24 meaning. The problem with that is -- for example, 25 WoolFelt is one of the cases in which the term was struck

1 down because the Court said: You know, no matter what you 2 say, we understand what "wool" is, and we understand what 3 "felt" is.

4                 Quite honestly, what we have is a case that 5 rises, if you look at the dictionary definitions, if you
6 look at the Internet usage, if you look at Tenza's usage, 7 if you look at the competitors' usage, if you look at the 8 media's usage, every one of the factors, "porn" means 9 "porn" and "tube" means "tube," and there is no way that a 10 rational jury could be persuaded that the words that are 11 in common usage mean anything other than the common usage 12 that they have been assigned.

13                 THE COURT: Now, "tube," I thought, really is 14 more colloquial for "television." So is it really that 15 clear that "tube" in this context refers to basically 16 either videos that have been created, amateur videos, 17 things like that? What's the evidence of that and why is 18 it undisputed?

19                 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Your Honor, if you have 20 available our reply.

21                 THE COURT: I do. The brief or the exhibits?

22                 MR. FRAY-WITZER: The brief itself actually, 23 Your Honor.

24                 THE COURT: One moment. Docket 134?

25                 MR. FRAY-WITZER: My copy of this is actually 1 unnumbered.

2 THE COURT: July 22nd?

3 MR. SHAYEFAR: 134, yes.

4 THE COURT: Okay. I'm there. I have got it in 5 front of me.

6 MR. FRAY-WITZER: If you can turn, Your Honor, 7 to page 7.

8 THE COURT: Internal 7? You are probably 9 referring to internal 7. Okay. Bottom right-hand corner.

10 MR. FRAY-WITZER: The bottom of the page.

11 THE COURT: Yes.

12 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Those two logos were historic 13 logos that appeared at PornTube.com. The first one, I 14 don't think there is any question but that is a 15 television. It still has the little rabbit ears on top of 16 it. Quite honestly, given the first one, when they sort 17 of made it a little bit more stylized and added a devil's 18 tail and horns to it, it is still a television.

19 THE COURT: Okay. I agree with that.

20 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I think also you will see --

21 THE COURT: That's telling us that PornTube
22 gives you pornographic video.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Okay.

25 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I think also that -- and this

1 was an interesting argument that was originally raised by 2 my Brother. He comes down and says: Well, the sites are 3 never, ever referred to as tubes. They say that in their 4 motion. We quoted precisely -- we took it directly from 5 page 14 of their motion for summary judgment where they 6 say: The phrase "tubes" is never used independently to 7 refer to these sites.

8           Then we say: Okay. Well, if that's your 9 contention, and we came back with, not only media usage of 10 "tubes" or "the tubes," or "the tube," referring to these 11 sites, but references from one of their own former 12 high-level employees. In the reply they come back and 13 they say: Calista says that we say that "tubes" is never 14 used. And that's absurd. It is certain they say that. I 15 scratched my head, because I went back and I said: Did I 16 misquote them? It is in their motion.

17           We were simply quoting their motion. We 18 provided the evidence. That is what tends to happen in 19 this argument more than I would have expected. A 20 contention is made by Tenza, we do the research to 21 disprove the contention, and then it is denied that the 22 contention was ever made. One of the most shocking things 23 to me, quite honestly, is that in my Brother's reply filed 24 just a few days ago, in response to our discussion of JT, 25 who was using the phrase "the tubes" all the time to refer

1 to these sites, they say: Whoever this JT is, no 2 credibility for whomever this JT is.

3           But if you happen to have available document 4 137-2.

5           THE COURT: Not by number. Is it yours or 6 theirs?

7           MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is ours, Your Honor. It is 8 Exhibit 78 to the Shayefar declaration.

9           THE COURT: One moment. 78. One moment.

10          MR. FRAY-WITZER: It was filed July 22nd.

11          THE COURT: Yes. The PornTube content
12 publishing program?

13          MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes.

14          THE COURT: I have it.

15          MR. FRAY-WITZER: Which, of course, is available
16 at the PornTube site and at the DreamStar site. If you
17 look right next to the headline, the PornTube.com content 18 publishing program, which, by the way, is replete with 19 reference to "the tubes," there is a picture there by JT.
20 So I'm not sure how to respond to whoever this JT is; it 21 is their employee. LinkedIn shows it is their employee.
22 Their blog announcing "the YouPorn guy is now the YouTube 23 guy," which we have also provided to the Court and talks 24 about bringing "JT aboard." The news articles that we 25 have provided from the industry publications, which talk

1 about "JT joining PORNTUBE."

2 So I think that both their own historic logos, 3 demonstrate what "tube" is. The usage of "tube" and 4 "tubes" in the media, in their own releases also 5 demonstrates what "tubes" is. There, again, Your Honor, 6 "porn" and "tube," it is a combination -- and I will not 7 argue that simply because "porn" is generic and "tube" is 8 generic that "porn tube" is generic. That's not what the 9 cases say. What the cases do say is that if the 10 combination of the two words does not itself change the 11 generic nature, then the combination itself is generic.

12 There are six factors that have been identified, 13 Your Honor. The first one is competitors' use. We 14 provided the Court with and spoke about it at the last 15 hearing, a list of more than 3,000 domain names that used 16 "porn tube," exactly as it is, "porn tube" in the domain
17 title. Another 800 -- more than 800 of them had a 18 hyphenated "porn-tube" in the title.

19 There are millions, as we have pointed out to 20 the Court. We provided you with 500. We didn't think you 21 wanted more than that. But there are millions of sites 22 that identify themselves, and this is something that we 23 should talk about, because there is a little confusion 24 about what the metadata is for a title.

25 My Brother is generally correct when he says

1 that in general metadata is not something that a user
2 sees. But as his own expert, Scott Rabinowitz, testified, 3 there is an exception to that. There is something called 4 a metadata tag for titles. When you put into a metadata 5 tag for a title information, that's the information that 6 shows up when you do a Google search and you get your page 7 of results.

8 THE COURT: By the way, are you using Google
9 search generically or specifically?

10 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I'm using it very 11 specifically, Your Honor. I have tried Bing searches, but 12 they are really not as useful.

13 THE COURT: I do occasionally ask people what 14 they think of doing a Google search on Bing, but that's a 15 different issue.

16 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I'm looking for one other --

17 THE COURT: Take your time.

18 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Although we have provided the 19 Court with the Google searches that limit the use of "porn 20 tube," the exact phrase to instances in which that was 21 included in the title, and there were still millions of 22 results to that, and when you look at Mr. Rabinowitz' 23 testimony, you will see that he says that this is 24 information that the site has to actively choose to 25 include in the metadata title area so that Google then

1 shows it in the results.

2 If you look, Your Honor, at Calista's opposition
3 to Tenza's motion.

4 THE COURT: One moment, let me get there.

5 MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is Docket 113.

6 THE COURT: Yes. I have it. What page?

7 MR. FRAY-WITZER: On page 9, Your Honor.

8 THE COURT: All right. I'm there.

9 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Although we provided you with 10 500 examples, at least, of other websites' use of the 11 phrase "porn tube" generically within their title, I'm 12 most entertained by PORNTUBE's generic use of "porn tube" 13 within its metadata for title. These are the two results.
14 The first one is the Google result. It says -- 15 underneath, there is the name of the website. There is 16 the URL right below it. Then right below that is the 17 information that gets included in the title metadata.
18 "Watch free porn videos at PornTube.com with new porn 19 tube" -- lower case "p," lower case "t," two words -- 20 "with new porn tube videos added daily."

21 Their Bing search result is identical.

22 THE COURT: All right.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: So not only do the competitors 24 use "porn tube" as the generic for this type of website, 25 Tenza itself uses "porn tube" generically.

1                   Mr. Rabinowitz' testimony is also interesting
2 because he was asked, first of all, about how many adult 3 entertainment streaming websites he thought he had 4 personally viewed. I don't think I envy the fact that his 5 answer was something like 3,000 or so. He was asked, of 6 those sites, and of adult entertainment sites, I think 7 generally, how many in some respect describe themselves as 8 a porn tube, not a capital "P," as a porn tube.

9                   By Mr. Rabinowitz' estimation, he said
10 conservatively somewhere between one-quarter and one-third 11 of all of these sites refer to themselves as a porn tube 12 but likely many more.

13                   So the first factor, competitors' use, I think 14 is really overwhelmingly clear.

15                   The second factor, Your Honor, is the 16 proponent's own use. We provide the Court, and it is 17 attached to the Shayefar declaration, I believe the 18 original one, as Shayefar 29. It is also document 98-12.

19                   THE COURT: One moment. I have it in front of 20 me.

21                   MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is Exhibit 29, Your Honor.

22                   THE COURT: Yes, I have it.

23                   MR. FRAY-WITZER: At the time of 24 Mr. Rabinowitz's deposition, which was only a month or six 25 weeks ago, this was a collection of pages from the

1 PornTube.com website, as they existed at the time. You
2 will see, Your Honor, that on every one of these pages 3 that we have provided to the Court, PornTube.com uses the 4 phrase "porn tube" as two words, lower case, separated 5 generically.

6 THE COURT: As an adjective oftentimes 7 describing such things as the word "videos, fantasies, 8 collections," and the like.

9 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes, Your Honor. I will tell 10 you that my Brother had a grand time telling me that I 11 turned every shade of red available while reading these 12 excerpts to the witness at his deposition. I think he is 13 right, but, nevertheless, that is PornTube.com's own usage 14 of "porn tube" as a descriptive adjective, as you put it.

15 Entertainingly, after Mr. Rabinowitz'
16 deposition, PornTube.com did a complete revamp of its site 17 and redesign of its site. Those references have been 18 removed, and we've provided this to the Court, when it was 19 reported in the adult entertainment media, Xbiz.com.
20 There was a headline "PornTube.com Announces Redesign, 21 Adds New Features." The article begins, "Popular adult 22 porn tube site, PornTube.com, has announced a new revamp 23 of the site's design and infrastructure." It is how the 24 media uses it. It is how PornTube uses it.

25 The dictionary definitions, Your Honor, we have

1 provided to you. I don't think I have to discuss them at 2 length.

3                 The media usage, my Brother argues that no
4 matter how many instances of the media using "porn tube"
5 as a generic or descriptive of the surface usage, that it 6 is never going to be enough, because he can point to -- 7 and he can -- any number of instances in which these sites 8 are referred to as "tube" sites instead of "porn tubes."
9 I don't disagree with him that he can.

10               As we mentioned in our reply brief, we did a 11 little search on the New York Times Archive. The word 12 "burger" --

13               THE COURT: The word what?

14               MR. FRAY-WITZER: "Burger." It was cited over 15 9,000 times in the New York Times archive, whereas the 16 word "hamburger" was much lower. I'm sorry -- it was 17 3,900. That does not mean that "hamburger" is somehow not 18 something that people would use as a generic term to 19 describe the product. It can be called a "tube" site. It 20 can be called a "tube" site as many times as people like, 21 and it does not change the fact that it is also called a 22 "porn tube."

23               THE COURT: Although a burger can be called a 24 "burger" generally without referring to something other 25 than a "hamburger." I don't think one would refer to a

1 turkey burger as a "burger." I don't think one would 2 refer to a veggie burger as a "burger."

3 Can one refer to a "tube" site that doesn't 4 refer to pornography?

5 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: What are the implications of that 7 then?

8 MR. FRAY-WITZER: It actually, I think, bolsters 9 our argument that what you have here is the very 10 specification imputation of what -- not where -- but what 11 actually appears at these sites. In fact, when we were 12 questioning Mr. Rabinowitz, and we were looking at some of 13 the Google results for tube sites, ironically, if you put 14 in "tube site" without the word "porn," one of the top 15 sites is from the Vatican. Apparently they have a tube 16 site.

17 THE COURT: What is it?

18 MR. FRAY-WITZER: It actually, I believe, 19 Your Honor, the Vatican posts videos on YouTube, and so 20 that's their tube site.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. FRAY-WITZER: There were lots of discussions 23 of "cathode ray tube" and the "London Tube," and it is 24 actually the fact that "porntube," as a combination, is 25 precisely what you have to do to describe what appears

1 there, not who creates it, but what appears there.

2 Otherwise, you might be at the Vatican site.

3 THE COURT: So just like the word "hamburger" is 4 a generic term for that product, you might find instances
5 of "burger." You might find people saying "turkey burger"
6 or "veggie burger," and so "hamburger" is the generic 7 term?

8 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes.

9 THE COURT: Your argument is that "porn tube" is 10 a generic term for the reasons you have described, and the 11 fact that we may find occasionally or even frequent 12 instances just to the word "tube" does not undermine that 13 conclusion?

14 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Correct.

15 THE COURT: I understand.

16 MR. FRAY-WITZER: My Brother, again, just 17 recently in his reply, made the claim that, well, although 18 you may see references to "porn tube" sites, you never see 19 references to just "porn tubes" in the media. Again, 20 although we didn't have the time to go through all of our 21 references, and certainly I would submit to you that the 22 vast majority of the articles that we submitted do have 23 such references. Just one, for the Court, from 24 New York Magazine, which is one of the more legitimate 25 sources, and it is a document that we provide to the Court

1 as Document 114-10.

2                 The article from New York Magazine reads, "It 3 was inevitable, once YouTube launched in 2005, that 4 someone would start a porn equivalent. Sure enough, over 5 two months in the summer of 2006, three different sites 6 launched that would become major adult tubes." These are 7 tubes PornTube, RedTube, and YouPorn. Like YouTube, the 8 porn tubes were flooded with free content, some of it 9 licensed for pennies from older companies that didn't 10 understand the web, much of it pirated from paid sites.
11 The 'tubes' had a new business model."

12                 The fifth factor, Your Honor, testimony of 13 persons in the trade. You do have some competing 14 testimony. Certainly Mr. Randazza says, in his expert 15 report, people refer to porn tubes all the time. Everyone 16 knows what it means. If someone were to come up to me and 17 simply say, "I was on porn tube," I would say to them, 18 "Which one?"

19                 Mr. Rabinowitz initially said in the first day 20 of his deposition, I have never seen or heard anyone ever 21 use "porn tubes" ever generically. It is always "tube 22 sites." We went through 30 of the articles and said to 23 him, isn't this a generic or descriptive? Yes, it is.
24 Well, how can you say you have never -- since he testified 25 that he was familiar with the articles -- how can you say

1 you have never seen, heard, used?

2 His explanations included that he meant only 3 in-person conversations that he had personally had; that 4 he thought that every single person who has ever used 5 "porn tube" in writing, which is wrong. He is entitled to 6 that opinion, I suppose, but it doesn't negate the fact 7 that it is used in the industry.

8 He also identified for me -- it was the first 9 time I heard of a website that he called the industry's 10 leading water cooler place for people in the industry to 11 talk, GFY.com, and we supplied you the exhibits from that.
12 It is frequently used. In fact, this case was discussed
13 apparently in a long thread on GFY.com, if Mr. Rabinowitz 14 is correct, with people in the industry expressing shock 15 that the UDRP had found "porn tube" to be anything but 16 generic since it was so obviously generic in nature.

17 The last point, Your Honor, on genericness that 18 I would discuss, the last factor is surveys. However, as 19 we cite in our main brief, a lot of the courts, to 20 consider whether or not survey evidence is relevant in a 21 genericness test, has come out and said, no, no. Survey 22 evidence is relevant if you are past generic, and you are 23 into descriptive or suggestive, and you need to know if 24 there is secondary meaning, if the words have developed a 25 new meaning, but it really doesn't matter for genericness,

1 because if the words are generic, they are generic. No 2 matter how many times or how many people you may have 3 convinced otherwise, they cannot be anything other than 4 generic.

5 THE COURT: Why wouldn't a survey of an 6 appropriately large, appropriate audience that asks them:
7 When you hear "Scotch Tape," do you think of a specific 8 brand of clear tape with some of adhesive on it? Or do 9 you think of just generally the clear tape? Why wouldn't 10 their answer to a valid survey be meaningful on the 11 question of genericness?

12 MR. FRAY-WITZER: The reason, Your Honor, and 13 this is what I believe to be the flaw in the cases cited 14 by my Brother, is that none of the cases that come the 15 other way, and there are some that say, oh, yes, you can 16 indeed consider survey evidence in the question of 17 genericness. Not one of those cases is involving common, 18 everyday words that seem to have a generally accepted 19 meaning. Scotch Tape, as in your example, although they 20 do have on their label the little tartan, I don't think 21 that anyone prior to Scotch having released Scotch tape 22 would have said: Oh, when you say 'Scotch' tape, of 23 course, you are describing a clear translucent tape.
24 "Scotch" doesn't mean clear or translucent.

25 None of the cases that say that survey evidence

1 is useful for the question of genericness, none of them 2 deal with the situation that you have here, which is 3 whether or not we have two words with a common meaning 4 that has simply been combined.

5 THE COURT: If I'm hearing you right, your 6 argument seems to be shifting a bit. Tell me if I'm 7 hearing it correctly, but I thought I heard earlier, and 8 maybe I misheard, but what I thought I heard earlier is 9 that survey evidence does not play a role on the question 10 of whether or not a challenged term is generic.

11 And now what I hear you saying is, well, survey 12 evidence may play a role in whether something is generic, 13 but only if it is a composite of two terms that are not 14 themselves generic, and we are trying to find out over 15 time whether that combination is generic. But you are 16 saying here, where we have a combination term, where each 17 component is itself generic, a survey is not relevant.

18 Do I have that right?

19 MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is slightly different, 20 Your Honor. We think our cases are the persuasive ones.
21 We think that the cases that say that survey evidence is 22 irrelevant on the question of genericness are the ones 23 should follow. They are well reasoned, and they say that 24 a generic word is a generic word. In effect, it relates 25 to something that was said in the Surgicenter case. "It

1 follows then that, even if the seller had educated people 2 to connect the term with the seller, if its primary 3 significance is still generic, the term is not 4 protectable."

5 There are cases, and we have cited them in the 6 brief, where there has been survey evidence. It just does 7 not matter. It doesn't matter to the question of 8 genericness. So my first line of defense, Your Honor, 9 would be, those are the persuasive cases. If you were to 10 disagree with me and say, well, what about the fact that 11 your Brother has cited cases that say that survey evidence 12 is relevant? That's why I came into the second argument, 13 Your Honor.

14 The second argument is, hey, I think that the 15 reasoning, if you like those cases, or if you want to be 16 able to mesh those cases and fit them with the other 17 cases, in the cases cited by Tenza, those are not cases 18 that dealt with common words. That's probably, in my 19 estimation, at least, why they came out differently.

20 That, Your Honor, really, I think, covers the 21 waterfront for me on genericness.

22 THE COURT: All right.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I'm happy to move on to 24 likelihood of confusion.

25 THE COURT: I'll tell you this, and you are

1 welcome to try to talk me out of it. I'm struggling with 2 genericness. I'm not struggling as much with likelihood 3 of confusion. I think there is a disputed issue of fact 4 on that. You are welcome to try to tell me why there is 5 not. But if you want to just focus on genericness, that's 6 not a bad idea.

7 MR. FRAY-WITZER: As much as I, like any lawyer
8 likes to hear myself talk, Your Honor, I will not run 9 through the likelihood of confusion argument in any 10 detail. There are only two discrete facts that I will 11 mention with respect to likelihood of confusion, mostly 12 because they are things that come up in my Brother's 13 argument, and so I want to address them at least.

14 It is interesting to note, and this sort of 15 comes under the similarity of marks argument that I make, 16 it is interesting to note that, although today, as they 17 stand before you, they say that all that we're talking 18 about is the combination of "PornTube," as it is 19 "PornTube" combined together. But the Court might 20 remember a discovery dispute in this case in which Calista 21 said: Hold on, we're being asked, not just for all of 22 this information about sites that have "porn tube" in it, 23 but sites that have "tube porn" in it and sites that have 24 "porn" -- then something in between -- and "tube," and we 25 shouldn't have to provide them.

1                   And Tenza came back and said: No, no, no. It 2 is all irrelevant, because those marks or those 3 combination are equally as similar. And there are cases 4 that say just transposing doesn't change it. There are 5 cases that say putting things in the middle doesn't change 6 it. It is a land grab, Your Honor. It is an attempt to 7 take the word "porn" and take the word "tube" off the 8 market, despite what Tenza might say to the contrary.

9                   The only other point that I would like to 10 address --

11                  THE COURT: Although I'm not so much worried 12 about the likelihood of confusion issues with 13 maybe PornStarTube -- although I think that's 14 interesting -- what were some of those examples? I will 15 do it from memory. Such things as GoldPornTube, 16 BigPornTube, or whatever, things like that.

17                  I mean, why isn't there a likelihood of 18 confusion as to source there? You don't have to address 19 that if you don't want, but I think there is.

20                  MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, I guess there are two 21 arguments, Your Honor. The first is that Tenza actually 22 did what -- I'm sorry -- Calista actually did what Tenza
23 should have done. It took the generic "porn tube," and it 24 added to it a suggestive or an arbitrary word. That's 25 what makes a trademark, is the addition of something that

1 is suggestive or arbitrary, not the "porn tube" portion 2 itself.

3 The other argument is, I guess --

4 THE COURT: But that goes to maybe genericness, 5 but it doesn't go to likelihood of confusion.

6 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, it leads me to precisely
7 the second point that I was going to make in two ways.
8 The first is, these sites have operated for five years in 9 concert without there being any evidence of actual 10 confusion. My Brother will tell me that I'm wrong about 11 that. I am going to address that in just a second, but 12 there really has been no evidence whatsoever that there 13 has been confusion between the two sites. In fact, 14 what -- there is interesting evidence of is a coexistence 15 agreement between PornTube.com and PornoTube.com.

16 THE COURT: You can get there, but my reaction 17 is, there may be no evidence of confusion, in part, 18 because the consumers don't care whether it is the same 19 company or not. I don't quite know what to do about this.
20 But if a consumer would be confused as to whether or not 21 PornTube, GoldPornTube, PornStar.Tube, BigPorn.Tube, 22 whether they are all from the same company or not, I think 23 that, on the one hand, there very well seems to be 24 evidence that they -- that there is confusion or could be 25 confusion as to whether it comes from the same source or

1 not. But on the other hand, consumers don't care. I 2 don't know what to do about that.

3 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Quite honestly, I'm not sure
4 how confusion matters if consumers don't care. If a
5 consumer says, "All I care about is getting free porn," 6 and I think the consumer may say, "All I am concerned 7 about is getting free porn," then I'm not sure where 8 confusion really matters much at all.

9 THE COURT: Me neither. That's why my struggle 10 on this part is, is there a question of fact on whether 11 there is a likelihood of confusion, I think the answer is 12 yes. However, how do I interplay that question with, and 13 what if the consumers don't care what the source is? Then 14 does likelihood of confusion make any difference at all 15 for a trademark infringement claim? I can't find any 16 precedent that says it doesn't.

17 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, I think, Your Honor, 18 what it does say is -- aspirin.

19 THE COURT: What?

20 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Aspirin. "Aspirin" was an 21 actually created word.

22 THE COURT: Right.

23 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Well, over time and through 24 usage it became generic precisely because the consumer 25 didn't care. They just didn't care. Aspirin was aspirin

1 was aspirin, no matter what you called it. So to the 2 extent that you might be finding that the consumer doesn't 3 care, all that does is it says that the mark itself is 4 weak. It is a mark that is incredibly weak. That's how 5 it plays into likelihood of confusion. It is an 6 incredibly weak mark that could not be given the 7 protection that Tenza seeks to give it.

8                 The only piece of purported evidence that has 9 been offered by Tenza as to actual confusion, Your Honor, 10 is a single DMCA notice that they say they received that 11 was related to Largeporntube and not PornTube.com. We 12 noted, of course, in our reply that it is at least 13 interesting that they did not mention the content that was 14 being complained of possibly infringing belonged to none 15 other than JT, and in response they submitted a 16 declaration from Scott Worsnop.

17                 THE COURT: Spell that.

18                 MR. FRAY-WITZER: W-O-R-S-N-O-P.

19                 THE COURT: Thank you.

20                 MR. FRAY-WITZER: And Mr. Worsnop is one of the 21 principals of a company called xTakeDowns, and xTakeDowns 22 is a company that monitors for infringements on the web 23 and then sends DMCA take-down notices when and if they 24 find them.

25                 This may have been my second most favorite piece

1 of evidence from Tenza, because it is astonishing. It
2 starts with Mr. Worsnop explaining, first of all, that 3 their system is fully and completely automated. So to the 4 extent that anyone is having a confusion, it is a 5 computer, a badly programmed computer.

6 We utilize proprietary software that visits 7 various websites, scrapes data on those websites, and 8 compares it to our database of our client's intellectual 9 property. When our software detects a match, it generates 10 a DMCA take-down notice. That's all well and good.

11 Then he goes on to say, however, that everything 12 about this DMCA notice, not just the fact that it may or 13 may not have been misdirected, but every single thing 14 about this DMCA notice was incorrect. The URLs that were 15 being complained of as infringing, he says: Oh, those 16 weren't actually infringing. The fact that it identified 17 Largeporntube.com as being the receiver was also a 18 mistake, they say, because "the URLs in this automated 19 e-mail were not, in fact, infringing and would have never 20 been sent, as we do not send DMCA take-down requests to 21 Largeporntube, as they only aggregate sources that host 22 materials and do not host themselves. Largeporntube is 23 not in our database of possibly infringing websites and, 24 therefore, would never receive take-down requests.
25 PornTube.com, on the other hand, which hosts material on

1       their systems, was set in our system to receive take-down 2 notices, and this is how they received an incorrect 3 take-down notice."

4                 The material wasn't actually infringing. The 5 automation went wrong. The client on whose behalf --

6                 THE COURT: I get it.

7                 Okay. Anything else at this time, 8 Mr. Fray-Witzer? I would like to hear from Tenza and 9 their response to your arguments about genericness.

10                MR. FRAY-WITZER: Thank you.

11                THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Fray-Witzer.

12                Either Ms. Newman or Mr. Tauger, or both.

13                MR. TAUGER: Thank you, Your Honor. I would 14 like to start by putting this case in the specific 15 context. The industry in which both our client and my 16 esteemed colleague's client operates is one that is rife 17 with piracy, far more so than your typical commercial 18 enterprise that probably comes before this Court in a 19 trademark context.

20                The evidence that has been put in both by Tenza 21 and by Calista, and I would draw particular attention to 22 some of the articles that Calista has put in, supposedly 23 to site usage, those are about the problems of piracy in 24 our industry. The material that we have put in, the 25 Free-speech Coalition video, the ABC Nightline report, the

1 CNN report, it is all about how there is a problem with 2 piracy, with infringement, with disrespect.

3 THE COURT: But we don't have a piracy issue if 4 "porn tube" is generic. So I am most interested in 5 hearing either that it is not generic or at least what the 6 fact dispute is.

7 MR. TAUGER: It is not generic. The point I 8 wanted to raise by talking about the industry was that 9 there is more -- we acknowledge that there is misuse of 10 our terms -- of our trademark. We also acknowledge that 11 there is outright infringement of our trademark and 12 probably more so than in cases that I have done that don't 13 involve the adult-entertainment industry. So I just want 14 to keep that in mind to give a context to what we are 15 talking about.

16 I would like to start with a description of the 17 Surgicenter case. It is funny that this came up, because 18 when this case was first brought to me, the very first 19 thing that I discussed with my colleague, Anna
20 Vradenburgh, was how Surgicenter would or would not apply 21 to this case. Frankly, it does not apply, and I'll 22 explain why.

23 First of all, the Surgicenter Court held that 24 "surgi" has no independent meaning in and of itself. It 25 is merely a contraction for "surgical." The Court also

1 held "center" is a noun, defined as a place, area, person, 2 group, or concentration. The definition goes on.

3                 The commercial impression created by "surgical 4 center" is identical to the commercial impression that is 5 created by "Surgicenter."

6                 That is not the case here. "Porn" and 7 "pornography" have two different colloquial contexts. You 8 don't find websites referred to as "pornography" sites.
9 You find them referred to as "porn sites" or "porn." In 10 the exhibits before you, you are not going to see that 11 term "pornography" used, and the reason for it is very 12 simple. It is what Mr. Rabinowitz explained in his expert 13 opinion and also in his deposition.

14                 "Pornography" is clinical. It is negative. It 15 is equivalent to the term "obscenity." That's not what 16 people want to see. What they want to see -- the 17 customers for our client and for my colleague's client 18 want to see "porn," the thing that is a little friendlier, 19 it is a little more fun, it is a little more playful, and 20 it doesn't have this negative connotation.

21                 So "porn" has a meaning that is different in 22 this context than, for example, "surgical"; "surgical" 23 just means surgery.

24                 THE COURT: Now, Calista's evidence on this 25 point is to the contrary obviously. I understand your

1 argument. If I were therefore to agree that you both have 2 valid points on this, isn't that a question for the jury?
3 You moved for summary judgment too.

4 MR. TAUGER: That's an interesting question, 5 Your Honor. We believe that our evidence supports what we 6 are contending. They have not put in evidence to the 7 contrary with respect to this distinction between "porn" 8 and "pornography" and how it is understood. So I don't 9 believe there is a question of fact. I believe the fact 10 that "porn" and "pornography" have different colloquial 11 meanings, particularly in the industry we are discussing.
12 I believe that's an undisputed fact and does not need to 13 be put to the jury.

14 THE COURT: All right.

15 MR. TAUGER: Now, with respect to "tube," 16 Your Honor, "tube," they contend, means television. Our 17 website is not a television. It is an Internet web 18 presence. The Court itself, Your Honor said yourself 19 "Okay, tube, that means videos."

20 "Tube" does not mean videos. "Tube" means 21 television, at least that's what Calista contends. If 22 this was porn videos, maybe they would have a point, but 23 it is not. It is PornTube.

24 I want to get back to Surgicenter, because there 25 are two critical points they didn't mention. The reason

1 that Surgicenter was found to be generic was because the 2 Court found that with respect to Surgicenter, the 3 consuming public, which is to say the target demographic 4 for the product that's offered "generally understands the 5 word to mean exactly what it says. This is amply 6 demonstrated in the exhibits from the examination of the 7 45 exhibits offered by the respective parties. We agree 8 with the District Court."

9 That's point 1. That is not the case here. The 10 evidence that we have put in shows that the consuming 11 public, and I would like to draw particular attention to 12 the Xbiz articles and to the AVN articles. Nearly 1,000
13 of them, which writes to the consuming public, our target 14 demographic, they use the term "tube site." They do not 15 use the term "porn tube." The few times that "porn tube" 16 is used as a noun are either by one author -- I think 17 there were five articles they put in by the single author, 18 who made the same mistake five times.

19 THE COURT: What about in PornTube.com's own 20 website? They frequently -- not frequently -- some of the 21 examples given to me by Calista show PornTube talking 22 about to their members that they are adding "new porn tube 23 videos" or "attractions" or "fantasies" to their site 24 fairly regularly.

25 MR. TAUGER: That's correct. That shows that

1 PornTube may not be aware of how best to protect its 2 trademark, but it is not a generic use. Mr. Rabinowitz --

3 THE COURT: Slow down on that one, because I'm 4 not following that one. It sounds to me as if PornTube is 5 using the two words, "porn" and then a space and then 6 "tube" to describe videos and fantasies and the like that 7 will be on its website in a generic or descriptive 8 fashion.

9 MR. TAUGER: Mr. Rabinowitz testified, and we 10 put it in our brief, that the use of "porn tube" in this 11 context could mean a video that's on PornTube; a fantasy 12 that's on PornTube. When I say that the client may not 13 know the best way to ensure protection of the mark, when 14 they started, they didn't put an "R" and a circle. That's 15 something that they had to hear from their lawyers. The 16 same with this.

17 THE COURT: I will and I probably shouldn't, but 18 I'm going to say it anyway, but I think that's the weaker 19 of the two arguments as between you and Calista, but it 20 may be sufficient to create a disputed issue of fact on 21 the question. I am still struggling with that issue.

22 MR. TAUGER: If I have to choose between the 23 two, I'll take the latter, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Understood.

25 MR. TAUGER: Getting back to Surgicenter,

1 because there is one more very critical argument. In 2 Surgicenter, the Court held that "the District Court
3 here" -- this is the Ninth Circuit reviewing the District 4 Court's decision. "The District Court here properly
5 concluded that the term 'Surgicenter' had not acquired a 6 secondary meaning."

7 And, of course, that is clearly not the case 8 here. We have surveys, not only by our expert, but by 9 Calista's expert that say unequivocally, without question, 10 beyond doubt, consumers recognize "PornTube" as a brand 11 name, not as a common name. That's clearly -- if you 12 don't want to regard the generic, that's certainly 13 evidence of secondary meaning. There is just no question 14 about that.

15 So Surgicenter is not going to be the 16 controlling case here, or if it is, it is going to result 17 in a finding in favor of "PornTube" being a protectable 18 mark as opposed to a generic mark.

19 While we are talking about survey evidence, I 20 understand why Calista is laboring mightily to try and 21 exclude the survey evidence of genericness. We have put 22 in our case law. They put in theirs. The Court can 23 review it; the Court can determine which controls. But I 24 want to point out that that argument has been raised, only 25 after their results came in. When their expert found

1 that, in fact, yeah -- I mean, he was unequivocal. He 2 said, "PornTube is a brand name; it is not a common term."
3 That's a direct quote from his deposition, and it is 4 supported by the evidence he provided.

5           Then it became essential for them to try to 6 exclude it, but not until then. I would ask this 7 question, at least rhetorically, if they believe from the 8 inception that survey evidence was not appropriate for 9 determining genericness, why did they conduct one?

10           THE COURT: The old belt and suspenders.

11           MR. TAUGER: Well, they put on their belt and 12 suspenders, and they lost that gamble because it favors 13 us, not them.

14           THE COURT: I understand.

15           MR. TAUGER: With respect to competitors' 16 supposed use of the mark, this is where I have the biggest 17 problem. As I started by saying we are in a unique 18 industry with respect to the disrespect shown by third 19 parties to the intellectual property of others, but that 20 doesn't mean it can't be protected. That's why we are 21 here, because we are using the mechanism of law available 22 to us to protect our mark, as is appropriate. There is no 23 free license to take intellectual property of others just 24 because a lot of people may be doing it on the Internet in 25 this particular industry.

1                   THE COURT: Although this is going to walk into 2 a laches argument.

3                   MR. TAUGER: We can get to laches. The laches 4 argument, I think, is easily disposed of, and I think we 5 addressed it in our moving papers.

6                   THE COURT: I think you have too, except I'm a 7 little worried about GoldPornTube and Mr. Matheson's 8 knowledge of that, but we will get there.

9                   MR. TAUGER: I can address it now or later.

10                  THE COURT: It is your choice.

11                  MR. TAUGER: Let me move on, and we will address 12 GoldPornTube, because I honestly don't see a real problem 13 with laches in this case.

14                  The rules of evidence still pertain in this 15 case, and a Google search -- we have discussed at length 16 why a Google search is not competent evidence of a 17 competitor's use. Just for fun, while Mr. Fray-Witzer was 18 talking, I did a Google search on the term "tube site," 19 two words with a space in quotes. The very first article 20 that comes up is, "The porn industry is being ripped apart 21 by tube sites." Then the next one is, "Xbunker.com, the 22 world's largest XXX tube site." And the third entry 23 happens to do with the care and feeding if you have had a 24 colostomy and the "tube site." But it is clear, at least 25 from the search I performed, that "tube site" is referring

1 to the adult-industry tube site.

2 One of the things that we mentioned in our brief 3 is that Google searches are unique to the party doing the 4 searching. On my computer there are probably cookies, 5 which I don't know how Google does it, but Google knows it 6 is me looking. I am sure that Google knew it was 7 Mr. Fray-Witzer, or whoever on his side performed the 8 search.

9 In the deposition of Mr. Randazza, I asked him 10 specifically, how did you ensure that this was not being 11 influenced? He indicated that he did the search on his 12 office computer. He also did the search on his home 13 computer. Mr. Randazza is an attorney that specializes in 14 this industry, so presumably his search results would be 15 very different than mine in that this is the only case in 16 this industry I have ever done.

17 I would like to talk about JT, and this goes to 18 the difference between admissible and inadmissible
19 evidence. Calista referred to a white paper that JT, a 20 former employee of Dream Star Cash, not of Tenza, wrote.
21 Some of the evidence that Calista has put in are 22 transcripts of web forum where supposedly someone who 23 identified himself as JT was saying things. The white 24 paper comes from our website. That authenticates it.

25 THE COURT: Ah, I see. So your point is the JT

1 reference that Mr. Fray-Witzer identified for me, there is 2 no issue about authentication. Whatever is in that 3 document, that's from Tenza's former employee?

4 MR. TAUGER: That's correct.

5 THE COURT: Your point is that other articles
6 that may be attributed to someone who identifies himself 7 or herself as "JT," you are objecting to as lack of 8 foundational evidence. That is really the same JT; hence, 9 hearsay.

10 MR. TAUGER: Absolutely. On GFY.com all you 11 need to do to post is register under whatever screen name 12 you want to give.

13 THE COURT: That's a fair point.

14 MR. TAUGER: I wasn't going to say this.
15 Co-counsel suggested I remove it from my brief, but I am 16 going to say it anyway. If anyone can go on there, for 17 all we know, it could have been Mr. Zhukov. I am not 18 saying that he did, but I'm saying anyone could.

19 THE COURT: It is a fair point.

20 MR. TAUGER: Now, I would like to read from the 21 white paper that counsel says constitutes proof that 22 "tube" means only adult-entertainment streaming video 23 websites.

24 THE COURT: Although somewhat inconsistent, 25 slowly but be brief on this point.

1                  MR. TAUGER: I will read one or two, and then I 2  will give you my count.

3                  This is from the second paragraph of the 4  introduction. "With the advent of adult tube sites back 5  in 2006, and the sheer horror to which they were received 6  by the adult industry," and it goes on.

7                  Same page, "For the end user, visiting a tube 8  site with so much content readily available," and it goes 9  on.

10                Same page, "Living and breathing a tube site 11  every minute of the day."

12                Same page, "I'm not going to try and bluff you 13  and say throw a clip up on a tube site, and you will make 14  bank."

15                There were, I think, nine or ten discrete 16  references, including a chapter heading --

17                THE COURT: I get the point.

18                MR. TAUGER: Okay.

19                So, yeah, you'll find uses of "tube," but only 20  in the context where the author has first made it clear 21  what he is talking about, tube site. That's what JT did 22  here. What you will not find is JT not using the term 23  "tube site," and just saying that we all know what "tube" 24  means, and that's what you are talking about. This is not 25  a competitor's use.

1                   Media usage -- wow. I think we are losing sight 2 of exactly what a word becoming generic means. That is, 3 it is understood by the predominant consuming demographic 4 to refer to the "what is" rather than the "who is."
5 Calista has labored mightily to find every single example 6 of the use of term "porn tube" that they could find. In 7 doing so, they have put into evidence a number of articles 8 from other countries, which is completely irrelevant to 9 the determination that we are going to make, a number of 10 articles that are from, I'll put it charitably, 11 questionable sources. The Court can read them. The Court 12 can make its own determination as to whether it should be 13 given any validity as to how the general consuming public 14 for this product regards the term.

15                   But the bottom line is, they have come up with a 16 mere smattering of examples. Are there examples of 17 improper use? Yes. And when Tenza finds improper use by 18 a relevant media source, it sends out corrected notices, 19 and those are in evidence. We have briefed that as well.

20                   So the fact that there is some usage is 21 meaningless and irrelevant. We have put in the Xbiz 22 articles, the AVN articles. We have put in mainstream
23 media, like ABC, CNN. We have put in industry 24 organizations, like VFFC (phonetic). None of them refer 25 to "PornTube" as a noun that defines what these kinds of

1 sites are. All of them refer to "tube sites" as the noun 2 that defines what these kind of sites are. It is very 3 hard to prove a negative. You're not going to find an 4 article that says, "I'm not using the word "PornTube," 5 because that's a trademark, so I'm instead using the 6 accepted generic "tube site." You are going to find 7 people use "tube site," and that's what we have put in.

8 THE COURT: All right. I think it would be 9 helpful for me if you speak briefly about the laches 10 issue.

11 MR. TAUGER: There are two instances that 12 Calista has brought before the Court. There are two 13 instances that have been put into evidence in the form of 14 chat logs. Now, the first chat log is interesting, 15 because when showing it to Mr. Matheson, he could not 16 remember the chat log. Now, Mr. Zhukov has since 17 authenticated it. He admits that the chat log is not 18 representative of what was actually received, because he 19 is the one who edited the names that would appear as 20 4Tube. But the main point is that Mr. Matheson couldn't 21 recall it, and for that reason, couldn't authenticate.
22 That's one instance.

23 Then there was a second instance in connection 24 it was 4Tube.com. I was in the process of settling a case 25 a couple of weeks ago. Opposing counsel's name was just

1 really familiar to me, and I asked him. I said: I know
2 you, don't I? He says: Yeah, I know you. We have worked 3 together before.

4 We spent a good 15 minutes trying to remember 5 who were our clients and what was the matter, and we just 6 could not. I have had, I don't know, maybe 50 clients in 7 my career, maybe 100. That's not like Mr. Matheson, who 8 right now has hundreds that participate in the Webmaster 9 Program, and over the past decade or so since he has been 10 doing this, not just in connection with PornTube.com, but 11 also with 4tube.com and Fux.com, I think it is unrealistic 12 to expect that he had made any mental connection with 13 either of those two occasions that would have carried over 14 so that when he is in the process of administering the 15 PornTube website on behalf of Tenza he would have been 16 aware of it.

17 THE COURT: All right. I think that's 18 sufficient.

19 Let me ask you another question, a different 20 issue. In Mr. Morgan's expert opinion, there seems to be 21 an issue or an interesting tension between his definition 22 of "adult streaming video," where he says it is realtime, 23 live, the ability to interact with or communicate with the 24 person being depicted on the video.

25 What do I make of that, what appears to be a

1 problem in the Morgan opinion?

2 MR. TAUGER: First of all, he didn't mention
3 interaction. What he said was "realtime live video." "

4 THE COURT: Right.

5 MR. TAUGER: What he meant, and perhaps it 6 wasn't expressed really well, was that it is streamable in 7 realtime as opposed to something you have to download and 8 look at later. That was the distinction.

9 THE COURT: I didn't see that distinction in 10 either his deposition or opinion. Did I miss it, or is 11 that stated somewhere?

12 MR. TAUGER: No. The deposition, which was 13 after the fact of the survey, he did get confused in what 14 his response was. But whatever he was confused about, the 15 only question is, can you attribute his confusion to 16 anything that appears in the survey. Our contention is 17 you cannot. But there is a second point as well, 18 Your Honor. That is this: Our demographic, the 19 demographic of people who visit our site and who also 20 visit Calista's site, are people who look at adult 21 material on the Internet.

22 I don't see that, in terms of qualifying the 23 relevant demographic, it matters whether they are looking 24 at a live webcam, like Calista described, or they are 25 looking at a video streaming website. It is still adult

1 video, and that's what they want to see. So it is not 2 like there is a subset of people who never go to adult 3 streaming video websites and only look at webcams.

4 THE COURT: Okay.

5 MR. TAUGER: May I make one other point about 6 the survey, Your Honor?

7 THE COURT: Yes.

8 MR. TAUGER: One of Calista's criticisms was 9 that there was a mention of "porn tube" in a subsequent 10 question after an earlier question which said which of 11 these are --

12 THE COURT: I read that, and I'm not concerned 13 about it.

14 MR. TAUGER: Thank you.

15 THE COURT: Thank you.

16 Mr. Fray-Witzer, brief response on genericness.

17 MR. FRAY-WITZER: Some very brief responses,
18 Your Honor. My Brother talked about Mr. Rabinowitz saying 19 the reason that "porn tube" appears generically on the 20 PornTube.com website was for this reason, that reason, or 21 the other reason. What Mr. Rabinowitz said is: I have no 22 idea why it appeared that way, but I could guess that 23 maybe -- he can't know. He didn't write it.

24 With respect to the Surgicenter case, my Brother 25 tries to distinguish it, because Surgicenter talks about

1 secondary meaning. You are certainly right he talks about 2 secondary meaning. The Court said: I find this to be 3 generic. Even if I hadn't found it to be generic, I 4 wouldn't let this go forward, because there is a secondary 5 meaning.

6 One of the phrases that my Brother used about a 7 word becoming generic, that's the problem with Tenza's 8 case. This is not "aspirin." It is not a word that 9 became generic. It is a word that was always generic.
10 "Porn" and "tube" is the combination of two generic words.
11 It tells someone what is at the site.

12 THE COURT: You know what, I don't think you 13 could make that argument persuasively before the advent of 14 YouTube. Do you disagree?

15 MR. FRAY-WITZER: I think that YouTube made it 16 abundantly clear, and it became incredibly clear what a 17 tube site was. But remember, the application for the 18 registration of the mark was years after YouTube was 19 already incredibly successful.

20 THE COURT: That's a different point. I agree.
21 I am reacting to your argument simply about the 22 combination of those two words is inherently generic, and 23 it may be. It may eventually get there. I don't know.
24 But I just don't think it was before the advent of 25 YouTube.

1                  MR. FRAY-WITZER: I think Your Honor is probably 2 right, that YouTube is what certainly pushed it -- I think 3 that YouTube, if you look at their logo as well, it is 4 also a television. So "tube" was something meant to show
5 videos. So I think you are there anyway.

6                  The final thing that I would say, Your Honor, is 7 you are absolutely right about the Morgan survey.

8                  Mr. Morgan didn't just talk about it being live. He 9 talked about there being someone there who wants to talk 10 with you, which is interaction. Not only that, more than 11 a hundred-some-odd respondents clearly had the same 12 impression what Mr. Morgan was citing, because they talked 13 about cam sites, and they talked about live sites. I will 14 leave it there.

15                THE COURT: All right.

16                First of all, I appreciate the briefing from 17 both sides. I think this was well briefed by both sides, 18 well argued today by both sides. I am not going to rule 19 from the bench. I am going to take this under advisement 20 and expect that I will get you a written decision, I am 21 pretty darn confident, within 30 days. I am going to ask 22 a few questions.

23                In Tenza's counterclaims, counterclaims 6 and 7, 24 constructive trust and accounting, that's for the Court, 25 correct?

1 MR. TAUGER: That's correct.

2 THE COURT: Everything else is for the jury.

3 MR. TAUGER: It could be if the Court doesn't 4 want to rule on the summary judgment motion.

5 THE COURT: Fair enough. If summary judgment is 6 not granted, I need to figure out what requires a bench
7 trial and what requires a jury trial. Trademark 8 infringement, unfair competition, under the federal law, 9 common law trademark infringement, counterfeiting, 10 cybersquatting and conversion. If summary judgment on 11 both sides were denied, and that's an "if" that that 12 sentence begins with, those questions are for the jury; is 13 that correct?

14 MR. TAUGER: That's correct.

15 THE COURT: If all of those claims went to the 16 jury, how long do you estimate the trial would last, 17 either whatever you feel comfortable estimating Tenza's 18 case-in-chief or the full trial, and then I will ask the 19 same question of Calista.

20 MR. TAUGER: Your Honor, we would estimate 14 21 days.

22 THE COURT: Total?

23 MR. TAUGER: Total.

24 THE COURT: Do you agree with that?

25 MR. FRAY-WITZER: We had estimated ten days,

1 Your Honor. I think that it is somewhere in there. My 2 impression is that this Court would try a streamlined 3 case, and so I think the ten days may be sufficient.

4 THE COURT: I definitely try streamline cases.
5 That said, I also want to be realistic.

6 You are talking trial days obviously, so that 7 would put us into our third week, even if it was ten days.
8 We will be going into a third week of trial, if we do have 9 a trial. Whether it be the full third week, four-fifths 10 or one-fifth of that third week, we are still talking 11 about telling a jury that we're going into a third week, 12 and we have to give them a fair amount of time to 13 deliberate.

14 If I were to deny the summary judgment motions 15 for each side, when would you all want to schedule a 16 three-week trial? We will put it on the books for three 17 weeks. I will try to force everybody to be more efficient 18 about it, but we will hold it open three weeks. When 19 would you want it?

20 MR. TAUGER: Your Honor, I think there are two 21 parts to that answer. One, it depends on the guidance 22 that we get from the bench, assuming that motions for 23 summary judgment are denied. If there's no adjudication 24 of any of the issues, then it is going to require more 25 preparation.

1                   THE COURT: Assume the following: Assume that 2 Calista's money damages claim will be gone, except for the 3 Court dealing with their claim for attorney's fees that 4 they may be entitled to under a statute. Assume 5 everything else remains. Assume that questions such as 6 whether or not "porn tube" is generic and whether or not 7 there is a reasonable likelihood of confusion is for the 8 jury. Frankly, assume that the remaining Tenza 9 counterclaims -- frankly, assume that they would follow.
10 They would also raise questions for the jury, but, 11 frankly, I don't think they really add anything to the 12 jury.

13                   If this is a jury trial, the jury will need to 14 decide essentially two things: Is the term generic? And 15 is there a reasonable likelihood of confusion? That's 16 what I view as the primary struggle that the jury would 17 have if it is a fact question for them.

18                   By the way, am I missing something? Does 19 anybody disagree with that?

20                   MR. SHAYEFAR: Laches is also something that 21 might go to the jury.

22                   THE COURT: Okay. Fine. You are technically 23 right, but that's not going to be either that demanding in 24 terms of putting on evidence or time consuming.

25                   Okay. You are right.

1                  MR. TAUGER: Your Honor, I would anticipate if 2 everything is going to the jury as you've described, we 3 are going to be very busy writing motions in limine, as I
4 suspect so will Calista. I think resolving them 5 particularly as early as possible would be really 6 essential for trial preparation.

7                  THE COURT: Here is what I'm planning on doing 8 with that, and this all assumes denial of summary
9 judgment. What I would like to do now is pick a trial
10 date and set aside what I see as three weeks. Then I 11 would envision two pretty significant pretrial 12 conferences, where at the first one we will deal with all 13 of the motions in limine that we possibly can. Obviously 14 sometimes things need to be decided at trial. Most 15 motions in limine, most evidentiary objections can be 16 dealt with at a pretrial conference. At least that's my 17 style.

18                 I generally issue rulings on motions in limine, 19 evidentiary objections to exhibits, and any objections to 20 witness testimony, lay or expert, at the pretrial 21 conference. Maybe two or three percent of the objections, 22 I will reserve ruling on, depending on whether there are 23 foundations laid or how things come out at trial. That 24 way, we minimize interruptions at trial, and we can have a 25 very efficient trial.

1           This case is sufficiently complex that I think 2 it will benefit from two pretrial conferences: One where 3 we tackle all of those issues and make a lot of progress 4 on jury instructions and then a second one a few weeks 5 later where we basically clean up whatever still needs to 6 be resolved and pretty much finalize jury instructions 7 before trial begins. Maybe we can deal with some 8 demonstrative exhibits, things like that.

9           I wouldn't expect you all to prepare 10 demonstrative exhibits before knowing how motions in 11 limine shake out. But if you know how motions in limine 12 shake out at our first pretrial conference, by the time we 13 get to our second, we can deal with demonstratives.

14           What I would envision, working backwards, 15 picking a three-week trial period and then maybe six weeks 16 before that having a pretrial conference. Then maybe 17 three weeks thereafter, three weeks before trial, having a 18 second pretrial conference. Then you have three weeks to 19 finalize and hone your trial presentation, and we have 20 time, if need be, for a third pretrial conference. We 21 probably won't need it, but we might.

22           So with that in mind, a three-week trial period, 23 and then we will have our first pretrial conference about 24 six weeks before that.

25           When would you like to have a three-week trial?

1                  MR. TAUGER: Your Honor, counsel and I had a
2 brief conferral. Late November or perhaps early December.
3 I guess that's what we would be looking at.

4                  THE COURT: Okay.

5                  MR. TAUGER: One question is raised, Your Honor, 6 with respect to timing, if I may.

7                  THE COURT: You may.

8                  MR. TAUGER: In granting Calista's motion for -- 9 I'm sorry -- which motion was that? In denying our motion 10 for default -- that's what it was. I beg your pardon. It 11 is granting the motion for leave to amend. The Court 12 indicated that we could take reasonable discovery, as 13 required. I am hoping to get some clarification from the 14 bench from this. We argued in our brief that the 15 discovery that would be required would be both written and 16 deposition. I would like to try and head off an 17 unnecessary phone conference with the Court. Perhaps we 18 could address that briefly, because that will also impact 19 the trial schedule.

20                 We would like to take Mr. Zhukov's deposition 21 and, of course, Mr. Zhukov maintains residences in Prague 22 and -- I can't say the name -- I'll say Russia.

23                 MR. GURVITS: Your Honor, we have done in other 24 cases depositions like that, video conferencing. That 25 saves everyone having to fly to Europe.

1                   THE COURT: That sounds like it solves the 2 problem, doesn't it?

3                   MR. TAUGER: It does, Your Honor.

4                   THE COURT: All right. Very good.

5                   Let me see when I can find three weeks. It 6 looks to me as if it would be difficult for me to find 7 three consecutive weeks before February 2015. So let me 8 ask you, how does February 2015 look for you all?

9                   MR. TAUGER: That, I think, would work for us, 10 Your Honor. In fact, I just asked counsel if perhaps we 11 should push it into the new year so we don't step on 12 jurors' potential holidays.

13                  MR. GURVITS: Your Honor, the only issue for us 14 is that there's school vacation week starting on 15 February 15th or 16th.

16                  THE COURT: No. School vacations are in March.
17 What school is this?

18                  MR. FRAY-WITZER: It is the East Coast.

19                  MR. GURVITS: We have longstanding plans to be 20 with family in Colorado starting on the 15th for one week.

21                  THE COURT: All right.

22                  MR. GURVITS: If this was a two-week trial, we 23 would have no problem.

24                  THE COURT: I can make it a two-week trial.

25 (Laughter.)

1                   All right. One moment.

2                   I have a firm criminal case that very well might 3 go to trial that starts January 26th. We can start this 4 February 2nd. I will be glad to make lots of rulings in 5 advance, and we will try to keep this to ten days.

6                   MR. GURVITS: That would work for us.

7                   THE COURT: So I think to be safe, I will set 8 this, just for our calendaring purposes here, a 12-day
9 jury trial starting on Monday, February 2nd, 2015. You 10 know what, that Monday, the 16th, is a federal holiday.
11 It is Washington's birthday. I will be efficient. I will 12 help you with this. I will set this as a ten-day jury 13 trial starting February 2nd. Then we will keep it to ten 14 days, and then Mr. Gurvits can leave for holiday.

15                   MR. GURVITS: Thank you, Your Honor.

16                   THE COURT: So a ten-day jury trial starting on 17 February 2nd, 2015. Six weeks before then -- how does 18 Monday, December 22nd, work for you all for our first 19 pretrial conference? It will be a half day.

20                   Do you prefer morning or afternoon?

21                   MR. TAUGER: I prefer morning, Your Honor, if 22 that works.

23                   MR. FRAY-WITZER: That's fine.

24                   THE COURT: 9:00 a.m., December 22nd, 2014
25 pretrial conference No. 1.

1           Three weeks later -- I may be in a trial on 2 January 12th. That starts a week before. How about 3 Tuesday, January 20th? My trial will be over. That's the 4 day right after the Martin Luther King holiday, the 19th.
5 The courthouse is closed. So can we do our second 6 pretrial conference on Tuesday, January 20th. Will that 7 work?

8           MR. TAUGER: Yes, Your Honor.

9           MR. FRAY-WITZER: Yes.

10          THE COURT: Preference?

11          MR. TAUGER: Morning.

12          THE COURT: 9:00 a.m., for pretrial conference 13 No. 2. Hopefully we won't need a pretrial No. 3, but we 14 will talk about that at either 1 or 2.

15          Okay. I will try to get you a decision on the 16 pending cross-motions for summary judgment certainly 17 within 30 days; maybe sooner than that.

18          Anything else that we need to talk about at this 19 time?

20          MR. FRAY-WITZER: No, Your Honor.

21          MR. TAUGER: Two very brief matters, Your Honor.

22          With respect to the order denying our motion for 23 default of Mr. Zhukov, you indicated that our contention 24 that he was an alter ego, and I quote, "as of yet an 25 unproved allegation." I would like to get some guidance

1 as to whether the Court's objection was a procedural one 2 or an evidentiary one in that we have not met a burden of 3 proof.

4 THE COURT: Procedurally we haven't yet resolved 5 whether he is or is not an alter ego.

6 MR. TAUGER: Okay.

7 THE COURT: I don't think it is fair to him or 8 to any third party to just simply assume that they are an 9 alter ego and therefore say: Since we served your alter 10 ego, you have been served too. If you really want to 11 bring him into this case, then what I think you need to do 12 is get him served properly, as soon as possible. If you 13 do it promptly, I think it would be very difficult for him 14 to maintain an argument that he needs a lot more time to 15 prepare than having trial in February of 2015, but we will 16 see what he says when you get him served.

17 The other option, of course, too, is take your 18 case against Calista. Then if you prevail, then you bring 19 a second case, if and when you get Mr. Zhukov served.
20 Then all you have to do is show alter ego. If you show 21 alter ego, you already have claim preclusion. You do what 22 you want. I'm not giving you advice on that stuff. I 23 just don't think it is consistent with due process to 24 default him on the state of the record that we have right 25 now. That's all I think I can or should say on that point

1 at this time.

2 By the way, something else I would like you two 3 to confer about, and maybe we will talk about it when we 4 get a little closer to trial. By the way, you will see 5 when we send out a minute order on the trial dates, I will 6 send you out my standard civil trial management order to 7 see what everybody has to file and when.

8 Basically you have to file things approximately 9 four weeks before our first pretrial conference -- 10 frankly, let's talk about it right now. Assuming a normal 11 non-declaratory case, plaintiff has the burden of proof on 12 the claims, and in my standard civil trial management 13 order I require plaintiff, four weeks before the pretrial 14 conference, to file things in what I call my first wave of 15 pretrial filings. You will see it described in my order.
16 It is essentially plaintiff's trial memorandum, 17 plaintiff's proposed exhibits, plaintiff's witness 18 statements, lay and expert, plaintiff's motions in limine, 19 plaintiff's deposition excerpts intended for substantive 20 use, plaintiff's proposed verdict form, jury instructions, 21 basically stuff like that.

22 Then one week later, in a typical case, I 23 anticipate and ask defendants to, not only file the same 24 documents from their perspective, but also to give me any 25 objections they have to plaintiff's filings, objections to 1 plaintiff's evidence, objections to plaintiff's witness 2 statements, lay or expert, responses to motions in limine, 3 and defendant's motions in limine.

4                 The following week the plaintiff has the bulk of 5 the filings back to them. They are responding to 6 defendant's motion in limine. They are responding to 7 defendant's objections, and they are making their own 8 objections to defendant's exhibits, witness statements, 9 and the like. You will see all of that spelled out. In 10 the normal case, it makes perfect sense.

11                 I think that since Plaintiff Calista's case here 12 are all issues either for the Court, or arguably for an 13 advisory jury, but since they are essentially declarations 14 of non-infringement, I think the burden of proof is going 15 to be on Tenza on their claims such as trademark 16 infringement, unfair competition, common law trademark, 17 counter cybersquatting, and conversion.

18                 The burden of proof will be on Tenza. So I 19 think for purposes of trial we should consider Tenza to be 20 the plaintiff. Frankly, I think even in front of the jury 21 we should consider Tenza as the plaintiff. I will tell 22 the jury that Tenza has the burden of proof on those 23 claims. Therefore, when you see in the first round of 24 required submissions, when it says "plaintiff," I think we 25 should treat that as referring to Tenza. When the 1 defendant files their second wave, the "defendant" will 2 then refer to Calista. Then for purposes of basically 3 trial preparation and trial, we should treat and consider 4 Tenza as the plaintiff; Calista as the defendant.

5 Does anyone disagree?

6 MR. FRAY-WITZER: The only thing I would say, 7 Your Honor, to the extent that there are claims that 8 Calista is going to bear the burden, the way that trials 9 generally balance out, the fact that one side has the 10 burden, is that they also get a few advantages in the 11 trial. They get to present first in opening statements.
12 They get to present last in closing arguments. To the 13 extent that we still maintain the burdens, the offsetting 14 benefits may be removed.

15 THE COURT: I understand. I frankly agree, but 16 I can't think of what, if anything, Calista would bear the 17 burden on other than an affirmative defense to one of 18 Tenza's claims. Traditionally, you know, we have 19 plaintiff asserting claims, a defendant bears the burden 20 on an affirmative defense, but that doesn't change the 21 dynamics as you have just described.

22 MR. FRAY-WITZER: If Tenza is, I suppose, 23 required to bear the burden of showing that its purported 24 mark is not generic, then that would be fine. I suppose 25 to the extent that we're having to prove the genericness

1 as our burden, it becomes questionable again.

2 MR. TAUGER: Your Honor, we would bear the 3 burden of proof that we have a valid trademark, and the 4 response from Calista would be, no, you don't, because it 5 is generic.

6 THE COURT: My understanding how this works, you 7 start out on the burden of production by showing that you 8 have a registered mark that creates a presumption of 9 validity. Then Calista would bear the burden of basically 10 rebutting that presumption, like an affirmative defense.

11 Am I wrong? Isn't that how it works?

12 We can talk about it a little bit more when we 13 get closer and in some of your pretrial motions. But for 14 right now, when you see my standard pretrial order, which 15 I'm not going to modify for this case, when you see what 16 plaintiff has to do in phase one, what defendant has to do 17 in phase two and going forward, "plaintiff" will refer, 18 for those purposes, to Tenza. "Defendant" will refer to 19 Calista. To the extent that Calista wants to make some 20 requests for procedural modifications to make sure that 21 everything is fair to both sides, fine, we will talk about 22 it at our pretrial conference.

23 MR. TAUGER: One more point, Your Honor, if I 24 may. This involves the deposition transcript of 25 Scott Rabinowitz. When his deposition was taken,

1 Mr. Fray-Witzer did a commendably thorough job in 2 researching him and preparing for it. In doing so, he 3 came up with some information that is personally
4 embarrassing to Mr. Rabinowitz and that is not in any way 5 relevant to this proceeding.

6 Mr. Fray-Witzer and I discussed it briefly at 7 the deposition, and I apologize if I'm misstating what I 8 thought we had understood, but it was going to wind up 9 sealed. We have since communicated, I think primarily 10 with Mr. Shayefar with respect to what's going to happen 11 with that testimony. The response we got back was 12 essentially: We don't intend to use it right now.

13 That is really not satisfactory either to us or 14 to Mr. Rabinowitz. We would like to find a way -- of 15 course, I don't want to put on the record what it is.

16 THE COURT: That's fine.

17 MR. TAUGER: We can produce it in camera if the 18 Court likes.

19 THE COURT: Here is what we will do: Have some 20 further conference about it. If you can reach an 21 agreement, send me in a stipulation, a stipulated order, 22 and I will enter a stipulated order. If you can't reach 23 an agreement, feel free to file whatever motion and 24 exhibits or declarations or explanations you want. File 25 that motion under seal, if you want. I will direct that

1 if you file that under seal, that any sensitive portions 2 of a response also must be filed under seal. Then we will 3 deal with it. We will get on the telephone and deal with 4 it.

5 MR. TAUGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Anything else we need to talk about 7 at this time?

8 MR. FRAY-WITZER: No.

9 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you all very much.
10 Safe travels.

11 (Court adjourned.)
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25

1
2                   --oOo--
3
4

I certify, by signing below, that the foregoing is a correct transcript of the record of proceedings in the above-entitled cause. A transcript without an original signature, conformed signature, or digitally signed signature is not certified.

9
10 /s/ Dennis W. Apodaca
DENNIS W. APODACA, RDR, RMR, FCRR, CRR
Official Court Reporter

July 31, 2014
DATE

11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25